

ALGERIA (INDEPENDENT)

In the aftermath of WWII, there was a growing awareness in Algeria that continued French domination of the country was untenable. The FLN (National Liberation Front) began attacks from 1954 on Harkis (pro-French Arab Algerians) and on Pieds-Noirs (European Algerians) in a guerrilla war. The war ended in 1962 when Algeria gained full independence from France.

This was followed by a mass exodus of nearly 1 million Pieds Noirs and Harkis, mainly to France

Under Ben Bella and then Houari Boumediene, Algeria was run as a one-party state, with progressive nationalisation of agriculture and industry (especially oil). From the 1970s, Arabisation was promoted, and a multi-party system was allowed, although this favoured the growth of pro-Arab groups. The increasing power of the Islamic Salvation Front and the Armed Islamic Group led to civil war in 1992-1997. In more recent times, a government of reconciliation has attempted to bring modernisation and increased employment.
